IVF treatment(test tube baby) is a treatment opted for when a couple cannot conceive naturally. The fertilization process takes place in a machine called an IVF incubator and, then the embryos that are developed are transferred into a woman's uterus. Although the chances of whether the IVF procedure works or not depend on a case by case basis, there is a higher chance of getting pregnant with IVF at 40 plus years of age, compared to natural fertilization.

Factors such as ovarian reserve, hormonal issues, quality of eggs, and many others are responsible for a woman's fertility. The chance of a young woman getting pregnant is more. There are cutting edge specialized treatments and methods now. Many patients with low prognosis have found specialized IVF techniques to become successful in conceiving a child. Before losing hope, you should surely get checked out by Heartbeats IVF.

It is certainly possible to treat fertility issues by a variety of treatments by modern medicine. Fertility Clinics like Heartbeats IVF have the technical capacity and equipment of international standards.
