

Mobilicks Introduces New Innovative Features in its Pill Identifier and Drug Guide App

Los Angeles, Jan 4, 2021 (Issuewire.com) - Mobilicks, an app development company, has introduced three new innovative features in Pill Identifier and Drug Guide app – a mobile application it launched a few months ago. The app acts as a handy drug reference guide that can help you manage your health as well as medical requirements.

An app is a free tool built to help you in searching for and identifying generic and branded drugs. Pill Identifier and Drug Guide are already loaded with many beneficial features like a pill identifier tool, drug search by name and index, drug interaction checker, BMI calculator, medicine bookmarking system, pulse rate checker, disease search, and the ability to find reputed clinics and doctors in your area.

Recently, Mobilicks added three new smart features in the app, which are:

Imprint Search: This feature helps you identify your pill based on the imprint of your OTC or prescription drug. On entering the imprint of your pill, the feature shows you all the drugs having that imprint. You can also get detailed information about each of the drugs shown. Identifying medicines is much easier now.

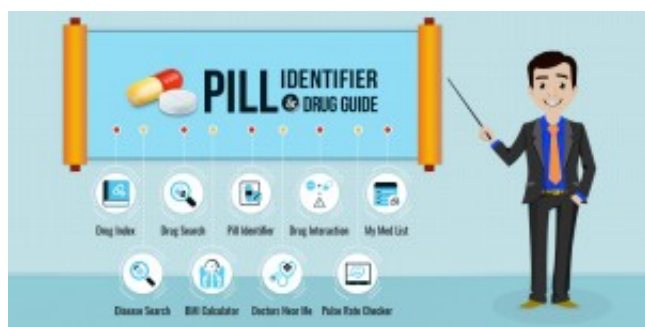

Calorie Need Calculator: According to your age, gender, height, and physical activity, this feature shows you the calories you need to maintain your current weight. Weight management is easier now with this innovative feature.

Body Fat Calculator: According to your age, gender, weight, height, and other factors, this feature shows you your body fat percentage. The app shows you categories of body fat and which category you belong to based on your body fat percentage. It also informs you of your body fat mass and lean body mass. With this information, you can manage your health better.

These intelligent new features give an edge to Pill Identifier and Drug Guide app over similar apps in the market. With this free digital tool by your side, you can keep a track of your medicines and become informed about several aspects of your health.

Although Pill Identifier and Drug Guide provides a lot of information about medications and helps you know different health aspects better, it's in no way a substitute for a doctor's advice, treatment, tests, diagnosis, or consultation. The app rather provides some immediate insights to help you get some quick relief. The app is designed to help you at times when symptoms are not severe, and going out frequently is not preferred, which is the case in the current times of the pandemic. So, the app development company advises all the users of this app to seek medical advice or treatment whenever required, especially in times of emergency.
