In any industry, there are many different types of mechanical products that are used to do the work efficiently. Power lock is a type of mechanical product that is used for replacing a single keyway and spline, in order to realize the connection between machinery parts such as gear, wheel, and flywheel, so the loading can be transmitted. Throughout the function of the high-strength of the bolt when the locking device is working, a huge strength of tight holding power between the hub, inner loop, and shaft are created. When bearing the weight and loading depend on bond power between locking device and machinery and additional frictional force to conduction torsion or power on the shaft.
