

Sterling Chandler reveals all about being back on set after first UK lockdown

Teenage photographer Sterling Chandler reveals all about getting back into photography after the first UK lockdown

United Kingdom, London, Jan 31, 2021 (Issuewire.com) - In an exclusive interview with Yahoo Entertainment, Rising Star Sterling Chandler revealed all about resuming his photography career after the first UK lockdown and what it was like to work on projects for Gucci and British GQ.

Sterling Chandler is a 17-year-old Photographer from London. At such a young age Sterling has already worked with major musicians as well as having his work featured in publications such as The Independent, BBC News, Dazed & British GQ.

Sterling said " This year has been hard as so much of it has been in isolation, so it was great to be able to play a small part in a team again and experience the energy you get working with others. Being a behind the scenes photographer on the shoot for Dazed and Gucci involved getting complete access to document everything which was just fantastic. I was peering in and capturing shots you'd normally miss. Being asked to be the Assistant Director gave me a new experience and the opportunity to see everything from another perspective, which was just incredible."

Sterling Chandler's photography has been recently featured in the GQ Men of The Year Awards virtual ceremony, as well as published in the Jan/Feb 2021 issue of British GQ. His images are alongside award-winning photographers such as Misan Harriman who was the first black man to shoot a cover of British Vogue and GQ Jan/Feb 2021 cover stars Lewis Hamilton, Sir Captain Tom Moore, Marcus Rashford, Shawn Mendes, John Boyega, Paul Mescal and more.

Aged only 16 at the time of the shoot, Sterling is the youngest photographer to have his work featured in GQ Awards stars.
