“As time passes, the natural face shape changes,” says Dr. Busso. “Full feminine cheeks begin to shift, pulling attention to the jawline. My BussoLyft™ is designed to trigger the body’s own anchoring mechanisms for a more natural and sustainable effect.”

The process begins with creating three lifting vectors carried by subcutaneous threads, a technique developed by Dr. Busso. If the neck requires additional lifting, then a fourth vector can be added. Then, strategically placed dermal fillers are artfully added to restore lost volume in the face. The procedure only takes a few minutes, and the youthful results are seen almost immediately.
