

Boston Airport Cab Installs Partition Screens in Its Vehicles

Massachusetts, Boston, Feb 10, 2021 (IssueWire.com) - Boston Airport Cab, which offers transportation services in Boston, Massachusetts, and surrounding areas, is installing partition screens in its minivan and SUV fleet to ward off the possibility of Coronavirus infection among drivers and passengers. The company will be fitting screens in all of its minivans and SUV vehicles, two of the Boston Airport Cab's most preferred vehicle types.

The partition screen is the latest integration that the airport transfer service is going for in order to solidify passengers' and drivers' safety. The company already takes mandated measures to ensure its fleet, drivers, and staff remain uninfected by the virus. Some of the other steps that the company has taken to keep the Coronavirus at bay include regular sanitizing, checking staffs' body temperature every day, providing staff and drivers with masks and gloves, and making it compulsory for passengers to wear a mask while traveling.

As per the latest government report on Coronavirus cases in Boston, 0 to 19 and 20 to 29 have made up for 19.21% and 18.11% of the cases respectively. Most of the Boston Airport Cab staff and drivers come into that age group, making up for another reason for the transportation service to deploy full safety measures.

While installing the partition screen in vehicles, the company will also deep clean and sanitize all the cars as a part of the installation process.

Because of the confined space of a car that drivers have to share with others, they are more likely to get infected. Therefore, a step to separate drivers from passengers was long overdue.

Now that the Covid regularities are easing up a bit around Boston and the rest of the world, precaution is needed more than ever. One of the most important things to do is to ensure that public transportation is safe to travel. Boston Airport Cab is right on its way to instill trust among customers with the number of effective steps it is taking to ensure infection-free rides.

During the early days of the virus, Boston Airport Cab had taken drastic steps to remain one of the operating transportation services in Boston. As a part of the safety measure, the company distributed hygiene kits to its drivers, thoroughly and regularly sanitized the vehicles, and encouraged passengers to maintain social distancing while traveling.
