New York, Buffalo, Feb 21, 2021 (Issuewire.com) - Earvin Eugene's short stories are relatable and inspiring. Motivated by isolationism, deep-thinking, and lovable experiences. Many have their own thoughts on his works ranging from "pro-life" concepts to quick abstract creations. People with his stories to be longer. Some feel anguish as it provides a mirror to their own devices and mishaps.

Critique on Earvin Eugene's stories is provided as simple, beautiful, and melancholy. Some stories are direct and abrasive, while others being more subtle and pretty. There are many metaphors yet it has in-your-face dialogue and moments. Earv states, "I would want to write somewhere between the tenth-grade level. Everyone should be able to get involved. Fans have suggested my short stories as bedtime stories for adults. With real words and ideas, I hope to keep it interesting!" There is no doubt EARV'S work will be cataloged. Look for more updates in the future.

Earvin Eugene recalls experiences from living in Buffalo as monumental for his writing. Living with roommates and friends. Living a simple life of study. Long Island, Buffalo, and New York City have all been influential. Let's see what the next chapter holds.
