

FEMALE FILMMAKING TRIO TACKLES CRIMINAL INJUSTICE
& LOVE IN FILM STARRING KEISHA KNIGHT PULLIAM FEB
18th ON BET+

California, Los Angeles, Feb 12, 2021 (Issuewire.com) - BREAKING NEWS – BET’s new original film, “Redeemed,” based on Jacqueline D. Moore’s novel, “Serving Justice,” executive produced by Vickie Adams and adapted by screenwriter, Monice Mitchell Simms, will release Thursday, February 18th, exclusively on the premier streaming platform.

The film stars Keisha Knight Pulliam (The Cosby Show) and TC Stallings (My Brother's Keeper) and is directed by Ty Manns of Manns Mackie Studios.

Highlighting corruption plaguing America's criminal justice system, "Redeemed" follows Angela Sylvester (Pulliam), who becomes the youngest female minority judge in her city and finds herself trapped in a 'Kids for Cash' prison scam orchestrated by her boss. Fearing her legal career and dream of becoming a federal judge is over, she loses control of her life and career until she returns to her faith and redeems herself of the crimes committed.

Adams, a producer, and director who has won multiple awards for her Christian short films are currently developing more feature films focusing on faith, love, and forgiveness.

A celebrated author, Moore has written 10 books and has plans to adopt her novel catalog to the screen.

And Simms is an acclaimed author, scripted-podcaster, Producer Guild of America Diversity alumnae, and an award-winning screenwriter, director, producer of the Showtime films, "Carmin's Choice" and "Rain." Currently developing and shopping projects, she is represented by Adreana Robbins of the Bohemia Group, attorney Toni Long and the ENTertainment Speakers Bureau.
