

Meet BeeRemote, The Innovative New Remote Working Solution Which Promises To Be The Future Of Work

California, Los Angeles, Feb 10, 2021 (Issuewire.com) - Pre-2020, remote working was a fun idea about the future of work. In our 2021 'new normal', we know that the future is here. Now, innovative company BeeRemote is changing the game when it comes to remote working, with an all-in-one global solution for companies across the world that makes flexible working simpler than ever before.

The future of work

With the Covid-19 pandemic having quickly made flex work our new normal, businesses have accelerated their embrace of remote working at an unprecedented rate. With this adjustment, we've learned that both companies and their employees thrive in a remote working lifestyle: employees are happier, with 99% saying they'd choose to work remotely for the rest of their careers, and businesses are enjoying fewer overheads by doing away with expensive lease payments and office logistics.

But that fundamental change in how we work has happened so fast, that it has come without remote working solutions in place to keep up with our lifestyle shift. Until now. Enter: BeeRemote's innovative global solution for remote working.

Aimed at startups as well as larger companies, BeeRemote's smart hub makes it simple for companies to support their employees working remotely anywhere in the world, unlike any that have come before it. Since it launched in 2020, BeeRemote has been providing businesses across the globe with their own simple end-to-end solution, on a dedicated platform, customized to the company's needs, which employees can access anywhere.

Global co-working spaces made simple

Remember, remote working isn't just about working from home. One of the most exciting things about this innovative new service is that it covers physical co-working spaces, too. BeeRemote gives a company's employees access to more than 1000 state of the art offices in the best locations across the world, from London to New York, to Tokyo, Bali, Singapore, and beyond. In just two clicks, employees can book their working space in any of them, so, whether living there or traveling, they'll always have a perfect base.

Employee benefits in a remote landscape

So what do employee benefits look like when a company's workforce is spread across the world? BeeRemote has a new answer to this too, with a global benefits marketplace. With this platform, a company gets their own online benefits marketplace, complete with different perks with various world-famous brands such as Apple, Amazon, Starbucks, Uber Eats, and more. Companies are given their own branded form of 'currency' on the platform, which they can give as an allowance to their staff. The employees can then choose the benefits they want to spend it on, which they can choose for their relevancy depending on where they are in the world. This means wherever a business' employees may be, their benefits go where they are - with no extra admin.

No risk

Even BeeRemote's subscription model is interesting: it's flexible, so as a company, you can pay as you go with the service, risk-free. It's BeeRemote's philosophy remote working is all about flexibility - in remote working solutions, as much as the new-normal of work itself.

To join BeeRemote's end-to-end remote working revolution, head to <https://beeremote.co/>.

Media Contact

BeeRemote

Info@beeremote.co

Source : BeeRemote

See on IssueWire