P.J. Tucker of the NBA's Houston Rockets announced a new collaboration with popular New York boutique eyewear brand, Temples and Bridges. The "June" collection features three-color options including Blue Tortoise, T-Lucent Red, and Grey Camo. This is the first of several capsules slated for 2021. The handmade acetate frames with interchangeable lenses were co-designed by Tucker and Tito Riveros, the founder and CEO of Temples and Bridges.

"Accessories and sunglasses have always been a big part of my personal style. Working closely with Tito gave me the opportunity to be creative and express myself through eyewear. The world will now get a chance to view style as I see it," said Tucker.

"This collection is a perfect glimpse of how P.J. approaches his life and creative style. We paired P.J.'s ideas and what he wanted to wear with Temples and Bridges handcrafted premium quality. Together, we developed a line that will start a whole new vibe in eyewear," said Tito Riveros.
