Now we're talking! Here are the most powerful reasons by Andrew Callejo ever for you to consider hiring an interior designer to help you out:

- Prioritize within your budget

You have a budget, and the interior designer can help you get the best out of it by identifying the significant changes that can be addressed with your resources and that will make the biggest difference in your home. The professional will guide you in the best direction to spend your money most effectively. She will tell you what needs to be done, what goes first, and how should it be done. Big projects can be divided into phases according to your budget, but no matter the size, with an interior designer on board, every project will be carefully planned to make your dreams a reality without spending more than you can afford.

- Save money and gain peace of mind

An interior designer will eventually save you money. They are so knowledgeable about the products out there that they can ensure you choose the right floor covering, countertop, paint, and furniture that will last a long time and will not give you negative surprises. The interior designer has the power to negotiate for the client with manufacturers and vendors, getting you the best prices and ensuring everything is purchased and installed to meet your desires.

- Problem-solving

Do you have common space problems, storage issues, difficult traffic flow spaces, and furniture pieces you don't know where to put? The interior designer works with concepts like scale, balance, emphasis, and color that will solve any problem. She is an expert on space planning, finishes selections and combinations, lighting design, and color coordination, assuring first-class results in regards to execution and final results. She's a neutral advisor, helping you and your family find solutions that work for everyone.

- Right to access 'trade only' resources

If your wishes include some kind of material that cannot be found anywhere, the interior designer can show you fabrics, finishings, furniture, and accessories that are not available to everyone. She knows the best of the best in every area, be it woodwork, painting, lighting installing, or cabinet fixing.

- Professional advice all the way

You just have to tell the interior designer what you want and she will make it happen. Show her pictures, furniture, take her places and let her know in detail what your dream space looks like. She will organize all the information you give her and will create a design to accomplish your wishes without sacrificing the functionality of the space. She sticks with you till the end, and sometimes beyond, making sure that everything works as it should. In other words, you get the best of both worlds!
