

Maxwell LeVan Promises New Release on 18th Birthday

California, Los Angeles, Mar 19, 2021 (Issuewire.com) - Record producer and social media magnate Maxwell LeVan has announced to his audience that new music is on the way. The 17-year-old musician with perfect pitch has been working in the studio for several weeks finalizing his newest release. LeVan has posted clips from the record "LOVE REAL" on his Snapchat story, hyping up the release, as well as teasing cover art on his Instagram. The release date has been confirmed for his 18th birthday, April 2nd.

Maxwell had seemingly disappeared from the music space after he released an acoustic version to his record Trash Panda in January to his listeners on Spotify. He has since gravitated towards a pop/rap style, leaking snippets of beats and vocals to his 15,000 Instagram followers. LeVan told his YouTube audience that “rooms full of grown adults who know a lot about music said this is going to be a hit.”

LeVan, a Catholic native of Southeast Virginia, began by producing hip-hop instrumentals in his bedroom and recording his own vocals on top of them. His first serious exposure to music came in 2013 when he was 10 years old; He was given Billy Joel and Elton John CDs, and later saw both performers live in concert. LeVan was mentored for several years by his stepfather, who purchased 2 pianos for the Virginia home. Although LeVan never learned how to read sheet music or took piano lessons, he was born with absolute pitch, a rare ability of a person to identify or re-create a given musical note without the benefit of a reference tone. Thus, LeVan did not require the sheet music for a song in order to play it is key.

Evidently turning a new leaf after having released multiple satirical songs in the past year, Maxwell seems to be honing his production and songwriting skills in order to create what could easily be a massive hit.
