

Upcoming Filmmaker Aziz Altamimi Set to Release Autobiographical Documentary Short

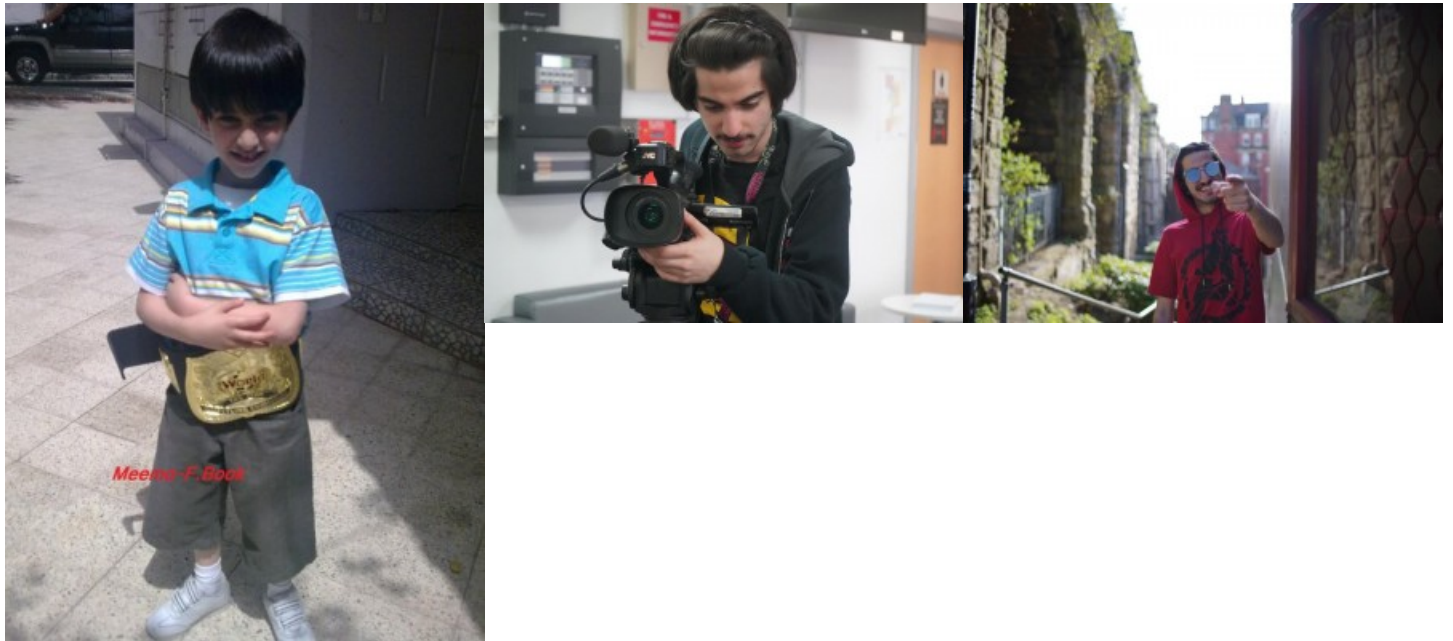

United Kingdom, Northumberland, Mar 31, 2021 (Issuewire.com) - Filmmaker Aziz Altamimi's upcoming documentary, The Social Jackpot is an autobiography depicting his life and his journey from Bahrain to living his wildest childhood dreams joining the wrestling business, and getting to know the wrestlers. The filmmaker has contributed as the writer for the documentary and will also be seen on-screen sharing his saga with the viewers.

Aziz grew up loving the sports of professional wrestling and wanted to be a wrestler but coming from Bahrain Professional Wrestling is not considered a job as that industry is not famous nor there is any wrestling company. Thus the lack of infrastructure and representation did not flourish into a professional career. He, later on, found his passion for YouTube and began recording wrestling videos which impressed the wrestling industry and got him to achieve his life-long dream as a filmmaker in the wrestling world.

The Social Jackpot is written by Aziz Altamimi and produced by LJ Anderson. The short is directed By Chris Anstee, edited by Philip Finch with cinematography by James Cook Sound, and design by Viktorija Eitminovic. The documentary is set to release in the second quarter of 2021.

Abdulaziz Khaled Abdulaziz Ali Mandi Altamimi was born on January 4 2002 and is currently studying film and television production at Northumbria University in Newcastle upon Tyne. Aziz has a YouTube channel with over 194,000 subscribers, which goes by the name, Walkwithaziz. Aziz mentioned several times that he is highly inspired by directors like Damien Chazelle, Quentin Tarantino, Christopher Nolan, and Martain Scorsese. He holds a special corner for Sasha Baron Cohen's screen character Borat Sagdiyev.
