About Mario Bonds

Beloved for being the face of anti-bullying and motivation, Mario Bonds is a singer/songwriter, motivational speaker, journalist, author, fitness enthusiast, and an anti-bullying activist who, despite being totally blind, continues to beat adverse odds. Having overcome a childhood marred by abandonment, abuse, homelessness, parental loss, and the loss of his vision, Bonds exemplifies turning tragedy into triumph. From appearing in Oxygen's 2012's run of "The Glee Project 2," to PBS's 2020 series Blind love," and to the release of the anti-bullying anthem, Human, Bonds is revered as much needed inspiration for today's world. The proud father of four adopted sons, he has found purpose through giving back. He holds a degree in journalism from George Mason University and is the resident journalist for Jenleeion Magazine, a DC-based inspirational publication by the Bonds family that had its January 2021 cover graced by the iconic Dionne Warwick. Bonds' first anti-bullying-aimed album is now available on all streaming platforms.
