Now more than ever it is most imperative to identify and define the pathways for recovery and transformation, to steer the helm of leadership direction, and to align government and private sector visions in order to collaborate and stay united. This will lead to all stakeholders emerging into a stronger and positive recovery.

The Middle East has always strived for excellence but in an ever-changing world comes the need for innovation and consistency in the vision set in place by the leaders, entrepreneurs, and global thinkers that make up the Middle East.

Bringing together global business leaders, high-profile investors, and senior government officials in an exclusive, private environment allows real discussions to take place creating new opportunities for partnerships, growth, and social good.

Embodying the values of The World Economic Forum and sharing its momentum 'The Middle East Investment House' will do its part in enabling the future of the new economy and society.

Over 6 days we will bring to the table policy-makers, business leaders, government ministers, high profile figures and investment focused public figures from the world of sport and entertainment in order to have exclusive physical engagements regarding the emerging trends, visions, and goals of the current economic environment and identify priorities for further action in response to the global economic crisis triggered by the COVID-19 pandemic
