

Country artist Jacob Jones releases “All roads lead to Rome” while still enjoying the success of “Two Wrongs”

Tennessee, Nashville, May 6, 2021 (Issuewire.com) - Suffolk native country singer Jacob Jones has a new single coming out May 7 titled “All Roads Lead to Rome.”

Jones gives some hints on what the song might entail, speaking about a man's patience after a breakup and his belief that all things will one day come back together, as all roads lead to Rome.

Jones is currently riding a strong wave of support as his most recent single, "2 Wrongs," surpassed 90 thousand streams across all platforms. This success has been one of the reasons for creating his upcoming merchandise line, Jones said. The merch release information will be provided at a later date. Stay tuned for that.

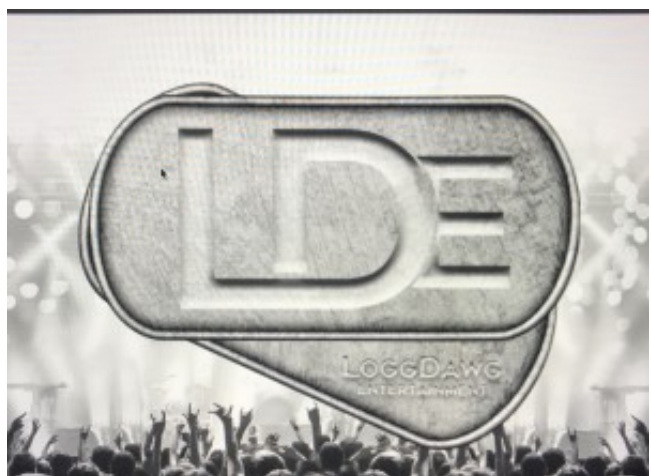

Along with his new single, Jones has already been back in the studio recording the follow-up to "All Roads Lead to Rome". He wants to keep the momentum from the success of "Two Wrongs" and the heat All Roads is about to bring

With success comes other benefits, as Jones will be performing pre-race at the Langley Speedway on June 12 as well as performing the National Anthem the same day. He will also be performing in Nashville on May 18 at the DawgHouse Saloon. Boots at the Beach country festival in Wildwood NJ September 17-19. Along with venues in Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania, and Delaware.

With his impressive rise in popularity, Jones continues to reach greater heights, and he hopes that his new single will help him take that step.
