Get to know Family Nurse Practitioner, Guilouse Jean-Bataille, who serves patients in Rome, Georgia.

New York, New York City, May 10, 2021 (IssueWire.com) - Specializing in medical-surgical nursing, Guilouse is a family nurse practitioner at Floyd Medical Center in Rome, Georgia.

The Floyd health care system is now in its seventh decade of serving the families of northwest Georgia and northeast Alabama. Central to this care is the not-for-profit Floyd Medical Center, a 304-bed acute care hospital and regional referral center covering over 40 medical specialties, including three Destination Centers and five Joint Commission-certified disease-specific programs.

“Our mission is to be responsive to the communities we serve with a comprehensive and technologically advanced health care system committed to the delivery of care that is characterized by continually improving quality, accessibility, affordability and personal dignity” as stated on their website.

A member of the American Nurses Association and the Georgia Nurses Association, Guilouse graduated with her nursing degree (Family Nurse Practitioner program) from Chamberlain University College of Nursing in 2012.

A Family Nurse Practitioner (FNP) is an advanced practice registered nurse who works autonomously or in collaboration with other healthcare professionals, to deliver family-focused care. Given the rather broad nature of the “family” patient population focus, FNPs offer a wide range of healthcare services that revolve around the family unit; from health promotion and disease prevention to direct care and counseling across the lifespan.
