WHAT IS SEO ANYWAY?

SEO also is known as search engine optimization, is a method of optimizing a website to show for specific search terms (i.e., SEO Agency Seattle). To do this, SEO Agencies typically start by determining ideal search terms based on a site's/page's overall search relevance analyzing a combination of keyword traffic and competitiveness. Once the target keywords have been selected, the process of technical onsite optimization begins.

Technical/Onsite SEO

Everything from site/page content, to title tags, meta tags, schema, and more are adjusted to focus on the target keywords. Depending on the website this process may take some time, and therefore will be ongoing. Throughout, this process your SEO should be watching your keyword rank to ensure optimizations are truly beneficial.

External Links & Content Generation

Through great content, the concept of backlinking and external link building can occur, trying to buy backlinks could simply backfire causing your site to fall in the rankings, so beware. Content generation can be continued page optimizations, or content generation via the blog. Regardless, you need to get the word out which is where email marketing and social media can play important roles.

Local SEO

Lastly, with the emergence of Google My Business, the concept of Local SEO came about, which is the goal of meeting local searches by getting onto the map pack (3 top map listings). With that said, let's not forget about reputation management as it is also highlighted in Google My Business. With a sound plan and professional SEO agency, your business could be climbing the ranks and capturing market share.

Let's assume that you have your SEO, PPC ads, etc. sorted out and now when you are fully decked up and waiting for your customers to land on to your website. And when they do, they just disappear on the misty Internet and you never really heard from them again. What do you think are you missing out on? Your website might be the cause of you losing your potential customers. This could be a real predicament. Let's be honest. How can you even expect a miracle to happen when you have an outdated website which is clearly maladroit? It's the first thing your potential customer will notice! Why will they even click or scroll down your website when you don't even have it fully optimized for a better user experience? You need to value your customers! With that being said, you need to give more attention to your web design in Seattle. When you have a unique website, your targeted audience would love to scroll more and check out your products and even buy them too. Are you getting the significance of website development now? Your perfect strategies of SEO, SMM, etc. without an ideal website are just useless!
