

Transfer2Malaga faces the 2021 summer season with hope and optimism especially after the government announcement

As announced by the President of the Government, at least 70% of the population in Spain will have received the complete vaccine during the summer, which will give us an immunity of 85% of the population. This is what experts call herd immunity.

Malaga, Torremolinos, May 18, 2021 (Issuewire.com) - As announced by the President of the Government in the first week of April, at least 70% of the population in Spain will have received the complete vaccine during the summer, which added to the 15% of the population that will already have passed the disease, will give us an immunity of 85% of the population. This is what experts call herd immunity.

This news from the Executive Board has filled with hope for the hospitality industry and tourism sector of our country, especially companies devoted to tourism in the coastal areas of Spain, specifically in the Andalusian Costa del Sol.
