

Hundreds of Large Footprints Found in BC Lake

Footprints thought to be made by Sasquatch

British Columbia, Vancouver, Jun 1, 2021 (IssueWire.com) - A new documentary titled Searching for Sasquatch: The Crossing includes a photo from above that shows hundreds of footprints on the bottom of a lake that First Nations people believe were made by Sasquatch (aka Bigfoot).

Filmed by local photographer and filmmaker Jason Kenzie, this documentary does not follow the usual script of traditional Sasquatch or Bigfoot hunts. Interviews with experts and people claiming personal Sasquatch experiences weren't enough for Kenzie, "I wanted to go out into the deep forests and find this creature for myself so that I could truly believe that it exists," as evidenced by his extensive searches throughout the forests of British Columbia. This searching led Kenzie to find the lake bottom covered in footprints that appear to be preserved from an unknown source.

The film also features an interview with Carol Serene Borgens, a psychic who channels the Spirit Energy Pax sheds new light on the creation and actions of the sometimes mythical Sasquatch creature. She claims to have answers directly from Pax on the origin of Sasquatch. Other interviews include claims of personal experiences as well as alleged UFO encounters that also lead to questions of the origin and existence of Sasquatch.

Searching for Sasquatch: The Crossing can be seen on streaming platforms Plex.com, tubitv.com, q0sm.com, and Playnow Medi. Searching for Sasquatch: The Crossing has recently been accepted into the NuVu Bigfoot Film Festival and the Michigan Bigfoot Festival.

Searching for Sasquatch Chapter 2: The Watchers is set for release in early July.

Jason Kenzie has over 25 years of experience as a photojournalist and animal photographer and is the creator of pet adventure videos seen on his YouTube channel "aphotowarrior". Having completed Chapter 2 and now researching Chapter 3 of his Searching for Sasquatch series, he is a sought-after guest speaker on the subject of Bigfoot and Sasquatch as well as on Bigfoot and Sasquatch podcasts and at Bigfoot festivals
