Lincoln Management Group - Continue to Soar in the IPO Markets

Japan, Tokyo, Jun 4, 2021 (Issuewire.com) - The initial public offering (IPO) market overcame a lightning-quick bear market in 2020 to bounce back to levels not seen since the dot-com boom. But there's still a laundry list of upcoming IPOs for 2021, as a host of companies plan on tapping Wall Street for much-needed capital.

Some of 2021's IPO highlights? In February, shares of female-led dating-app operator Bumble (BMBL) rocketed well more than 60% higher in their public debut. In March, online gaming platform Roblox (RBLX) enjoyed a 54% first-day jump after its offering. And in April, online education provider Coursera (COUR) priced at the high end of its range and still ended its first day up 36%. That follows monster second-half 2020 offerings such as business-to-business database operator ZoomInfo (ZI), cloud infrastructure firm Snowflake (SNOW) and the December blockbuster offering for Airbnb (ABNB).

You can thank a rapid snap-back rally and rock-bottom interest rates for rejuvenating Wall Street's wheeling and dealing. Lincoln Management Group is no different. We have selected some fine winners to date although there are a few more we have been lining up for this year and continue to delight our client’s. To find out what we have planned, contact Lincoln Management Group to get a piece of the action.
