

Mahan Teymouri and Darren Hardy at the "Future of Management" and "Pioneers of Leadership" Seminar

California, California City, Jun 7, 2021 (Issuewire.com) - According to the latest research from Harvard University, the challenge of management is the danger that threatens the Middle East in the not-too-distant future. If we look at the growth trend in the Middle East, it is clear that the Middle East has focused all its attention on attracting capital over the last decade, and today we see a huge amount of capital in the Middle East countries that are suffering from the crisis of management. Hence, the challenge of management in the Middle East with this amount of capital raising will certainly be the topic of many crisis management meetings in the coming years. But the point here is to think of a fundamental solution. The main capital that has entered Iran and the Middle East in recent years has been through European countries, China and the Far East, and now, if there is no management strategy, foreign managers will inevitably step into this geographical area, and This means the collapse of the business base in Iran and the Middle East.

Mahan Teymouri International Holding, like other years of its activity, has started the year 2021 by resolving a concern. Management is a concern that this time Master Mahan Teymouri has focused on.
