Pioneering the Patented Combat Dial System™ featured in HeroClix™, the most successful collectible miniatures game on the market, mastering the Dice Building Game™ engine, used in Quarriors!™ and Dice Masters™, and adapting the FlightPath™ maneuver system for compatibility with Attack Wing™, WizKids never fails to impress.

WizKids recently announces the upcoming release of Zombie Princess and the Enchanted Maze, a lighthearted game of undeath by Andrew Beardsley and illustrated by Lou Webb; the release date expected to be August 2021.

According to WizKids:

Build and navigate a treacherous hedge maze by placing and rotating maze tiles, retrieve your key, and escape before the Zombie Princes catch and turns you!

Once upon a time, she was looking for love...

Now she's looking for lunch!

As a knight, you are bound by chivalry to rescue the trapped princess. However, this princess is a zombie! And she is roaming free in an enchanted maze. Get to the other side to grab a key and race to the castle — before becoming a zombie yourself!

A competitive game of tile placement, as you build out the maze by playing tiles and changing the paths within the maze by rotating tiles. Your goal is to get to your key on the other side of the maze while avoiding the Zombie Princess – or even any Zombie Knights. Of course, you may have helped create those Zombie Knights by arranging a convenient path for the princess to get that knight.

A lighthearted game of undeath awaits you in Zombie Princess and the Enchanted Maze!

Zombie Princess and the Enchanted Maze features 48 map tiles for a nearly limitless number of maze layouts. Gamer starts in one corner of the board, and their goal is to get to the key on the other side of the maze while avoiding the Zombie Princess – or even any Zombie Knights. The first Knight to reach the 3D Castle at the center of the maze wins!
