

Evan Field is growing bigger with the ecstatic indie rock song 'Hurricane'

Evan Field, a new-age alternative rock musician, has released a new song 'Hurricane' with a burst of head-banging folkish symphonies and raging collections of words on Spotify.

Ventura, Jul 18, 2021 (Issuewire.com) - Evan Field is one of the few musicians that is shattering the stereotypical concept of alternative and indie rock music that was previously perceived as filthy. The New York-based indie rock artist is presently producing his new song MISCAVAGE with a variety of gloomy and furious melodies. 'Hurricane' is a strong alternative track with captivating rock music waves. It's one of his standout tracks, capturing the genuine spirit of engrossing rock culture. It spews extreme rock verses with brutally honest lyrics that aren't scared of the awful truth of reality. This song's attractive instrumentation is the product of skill.

The traditional familiarity of an Evan Field favorite is blended with the raw musical vitality of an energetic indie-meets-rock-type atmosphere, kicking things off in a delightfully stylish way. The song is an essential must for those of us who enjoy completely immersing ourselves in the intensity of the music. Things continue along this road throughout the performance, with a dash of something we all know and love, some famous references, but presented in a hypnotically ambient and rhythmic style. It's like a real guilty pleasures experience. It feels fantastic to immerse oneself in the music, and everything evolves in a pleasant manner. Rather than being a list of personal favorites put in arbitrary order, the collection feels related within itself, pertinent to its own creativity and atmosphere.

He started producing the heart whelming songs at a young age. Now, he found the perfect ground in the industry with his breakthrough singles that made him a renowned name in a spree. He frames the songs with the experience that comes from the long and tedious everyday life but never emulates the same story just like he does not make the same type of music. 'Hurricane' is a sweet melodic soft rock version echoed with the indelible vocal of the artist. It is surpassed with soft rhythmic guitar chords that evoke repose rather than chaos. The more you go into the set, the more it becomes a part of you and your evening. This selection of chords, the lyricism, the confluence of the familiar and the surprise, the brightness and changeable beats, the relaxing and yet uplifting, ambient ambiance of it all – this one is a winner. No two songs share similar tastes, making him one of the best versatile rock artists. He keeps enhancing his artistic ability with each success. Follow him on Spotify, Instagram, and Twitter for all the latest collections of his musical projects.

Click here to listen to this track on Spotify:

<https://open.spotify.com/track/3NhkbCVUuBbAevCmp4Zv0x>

Media Contact

Music Promotion Club

info@musicpromotion.club

Source : Evan Field

See on IssueWire