South Holland, Jul 4, 2021 (Issuewire.com) - Stylishly upbeat musical arrangement and vocal skills sprawl through the latest track 'I'm Here in the Fridge' by I Panic. It has been released under the label of Nuvoles Music. The title already gives a hint of the catchy lyricism which can be found throughout the whole track. The artist beautifully meanders with his amazing vocal skills, complemented by a finely calibrated sound design. Churning out the flavors of alternative rock music, the track is filled with multiple immersive moments and smooth transitions which give a sense of evolving. So does the lyrical of the track that follows metaphoric symbolisms from daily life.

The track has been released with an official music video that contains a colorful performance by the sock puppets. An opened fridge filled with food can be seen in the background, justifying the theme of 'I'm Here in the Fridge'. The elements might only seem like a relatable approach from daily life but its poetic metaphors keep an underlying meaning. The original version of the track has already garnered much attention before and with the latest music video, the flavors are getting richer with visual support. I panic has done a great job as a one-man alternative rock band. There is an alternative theatrical rock essence to it which makes it sound more exciting. Previously, this band has created some of the masterpieces like, 'The Smile is Gone', 'Stronger', 'Kill the Dog', 'I will never', etc many others. Setting an example in the industry, this band has been providing listeners something new with its musical and lyrical creativity.

Hailing from the Netherlands, the band is looking forward to crafting more tracks by extracting the ironies of life and its experiences and punch of musical artsy. Intricate details to the storytelling and an amazing singing style do not fail to captivate the listeners. The artist is willing to provide more new flavors in the coming days while following the path of success. After garnering much attention from online listeners, the artist is releasing his songs on CDs as well with a nostalgic impact. Follow I panic on YouTube to know more.
