Tunisia, Tunis, Aug 13, 2021 (IssueWire.com) - Tunisia is considered to be a top tourist destination for many travelers who visit the country. This small country is located between Africa and Europe and has Mediterranean weather. It is also home to some of the most beautiful beaches on the Mediterranean coast. Its capital city of Tunis is the perfect place to enjoy some sun, sand, and the rich history of this small country. The best hospitals in Tunisia are found in Tunisia's capital city of Tunis.

The El Bey Mausoleum is a remarkable example of a surviving ancient building from the Roman period. Today it houses the university's medical school. Other prominent universities in Tunisia include the College of Al-Karaouine, Al Hoceima, and Tunis University. A few hours away from Tunisia is France, a popular destination for tourists interested in architecture and research facilities. At the University of Paris, there is a famous institute called the Research Centre Talaa Slimane.

El Ghriba El Tajir is a research facility and an administrative headquarters of Tunisian University. The institute has recently acquired two other important research facilities in Tunisia, each in Tataouine and Maassen. The El Gounaoud Hospital, specializing in cardiology, received a major upgrade recently. This hospital is a famous attraction in Tunis, especially for those interested in cardiovascular conditions. The Bujdama University is a well-respected medical research facility in Tunisia.

The University of Nimes is another well-respected research facility. Its forensic department was one of the first establishments in Tunisia to gain accreditation. The University of Sfaxantara, a smaller university, is one of the best hospitals in Tunisia for cardiology. It was originally built as a tuberculosis hospital, but later, it was adapted to become a fully-fledged hospital.

General Tunisia is another destination with many popular medical facilities. The Sidi Zalim University has a research wing. The Islamic University of Tunis, a branch of the University of Malawi, is another noteworthy destination. There are over 40 more medical facilities in the region.

If you are traveling to Tunisia on vacation and would like to opt for a top-notch hospital, contact your travel agent or visit online forums. Many travel agents are familiar with the best hotels and resorts. They can also recommend a good hospital. On the other hand, if you want to work independently and save some money, you can do some research online and visit Tunisia's Department of Health and Human Rights. The office offers an online directory of hospitals and medical facilities in the country.
