Greatness University Documents the Legacy of the Former President of Sierra Leone H.E. Ernest Bai Koroma

United Kingdom, London, Aug 10, 2021 (Issuewire.com) - Following the Sir Clyde Rivers Presidential Greatness & Civility Humanitarian Award given to the 4th President of the Republic of Sierra Leone H.E. Ernest Bai Koroma, Greatness University has been researching and documenting his life and work in the book titled “Presidential Greatness Exemplified”.

Based in London, Greatness University is the world’s first institution dedicated to discovering, developing, delivering, and celebrating greatness in individuals and organisations. Founded in 2015, Greatness University has researched and documented high profile personalities such as the legendary motivational speaker Les Brown; the grandmother of the USA President Barak Obama, Mama Sarah Obama; the world’s youngest king Omukama Oyo Nyimba Kabamba Iguru Rukidi IV of Tooro; and many others.

According to its Chancellor, Professor Patrick Businge, Greatness University is expected to unveil the final copy of this legacy book at the award ceremony where H.E. Ernest Bai Koroma will be celebrated for using his life to design a new life in Sierra Leone and on the African continent.

H.E. Ernest Bai Koroma was nominated by the World Civility Leader and Founder of I Change Nations Sir Clyde Rivers to receive this award. In his foreword to this legacy book, Sir Clyde Rivers writes: 'President Ernest Bai Koroma is a true statesman at the core of his heart and with a true love for the people of The Republic of Sierra Leone. He exhibited great leadership as he allowed the democratic process to transpire in his country when he left power during the terms of the constitution of Sierra Leone. This shows the character and the integrity of this great man. In this day where people are power hungry and to see leadership like this really brings hope to the nations of the world. This is why I am honoured to have Greatness University award the Former President of Sierra Leone, H. E. Ernest Bai Koroma, with the Sir Clyde Rivers Presidential Greatness and Civility Humanitarian Award for representing civility in his leadership of this amazing country.'

Professor Patrick Businge explains that this book will help people worldwide, especially the young generation, to understand what they need to reright their lives and rewrite their future. At Greatness University, this book will be used to offer a breakthrough education that synchronies real-time greatness and impactful civility humanitarianism which is delivered through its virtual institutes and its affiliate partners globally.

When contacted, Professor Patrick Businge, who stays in London, says that the President's book comes after his realisation that there is a prevailing culture of silence about the greatness of former African presidents. More often, African presidents and heads of state are hated, criminalised, and undervalued after their presidency. They are rarely celebrated for the visible and invisible greatness they manifested in their respective nations. Their greatness must be a source of inspiration for future leaders. Businge hopes that this book will launch a shift from a culture of silence to a culture of celebration for former and current African presidents. He explains that this book will feature President Ernest Bai Koroma's work as a great president, a vivid visionary, an apostle of peace, a servant leader, a civility humanitarian, and a legend of greatness.

"The intention is to document and archive the visible and invisible greatness of these presidents. When we don't document their greatness, we lose passing on the legacy of the civility humanitarianism work they have done; and when we leave their civility humanitarian work undocumented, we lose our greatness as a people," Businge explains. Stay in touch at www.greatnessuniversity.co.uk to get updates about the book on the man who has written history with his words and transformed the world with his life of service.

Media Contact

Greatness University

greatnessuniversityuk@gmail.com

Source : Greatness University

See on IssueWire