Get to know Intensivist Dr. James Dargin, who serves the population of Massachusetts.

New York, New York City, Aug 9, 2021 (Issuewire.com) - Dr. Dargin is a dual board-certified Intensivist currently practicing with Lahey Hospital & Medical Center and is affiliated with Beverly Hospital and Winchester Hospital. Additionally, he is a Clinical Assistant Professor of Medicine with the Tufts University School of Medicine. He holds expertise in Pulmonary and Critical Care Medicine.

In regards to his education, he graduated with his bachelor's degree from Boston University, followed by his medical degree from the Boston University School of Medicine in 2004. He then completed his internship with Lahey Hospital & Medical Center in 2005, his residency with Boston Medical Center (BMC) in 2008, and a fellowship with the University of Pittsburgh Medical Center in 2010.

Due to his expertise in his field, he is certified by the American Board of Emergency Medicine (ABEM) and in Critical Care Medicine by the American Board of Internal Medicine (ABIM). ABEM certifies emergency physicians who meet its educational, professional standing, and examination standards. ABEM certification is sought and earned by emergency physicians on a voluntary basis. ABEM certification is an accomplishment in which the emergency physician can take pride. It represents physicians' highest professional credential, reflecting that they have met an externally developed national standard. Emergency physicians who participate in continuing certification demonstrate to the public that they are actively engaged in a program of continuous professional development that assists the physician in delivering the highest quality and most current patient care. ABIM is a physician-led, non-profit, independent evaluation organization driven by doctors who want to achieve higher standards for better care in a rapidly changing world.

He has been awarded the honorary designations of Fellow of the American College of Critical Care Medicine and the American College of Chest Physicians.

An intensivist is a board-certified physician who provides special care for critically ill patients. Also known as a critical care physician, the intensivist has advanced training and experience in treating this complex type of patient. The intensivist has the primary responsibility for the ICU patient's care versus acting as a consultant, as many specialists do. In this role, he or she leads a team of caregivers who are experts in different specialties. The intensivist also oversees the many decisions involved in a critically ill patient's care and coordinates all the other services the patient may need – including those from specialists.
