Chiropractic is a form of alternative conservative care that mainly deals with the diagnosis and treatment of disorders to the musculoskeletal system and the spine. A chiropractor uses spinal adjustments, along with stretching, therapeutic exercise, electrical stim, and ultrasound to address patient concerns related to neck and back pain, headaches, vertigo, and sciatic pain as well as many other musculoskeletal conditions. The ultimate goal with patients is to improve functionality, decrease pain, increase range of motion, and improve quality of life. All of this is attainable by properly aligning the spine and decreasing strain on the musculoskeletal system as a whole. Returning a level of homeostasis to the body allows healing to occur naturally, without the use of medication or surgery.
