Speechelo Features:

Speechelo comes with some pretty cool features which first and foremost includes the ability to transform your script instantly from text to speech literally within 3 clicks, that part is true.

What is interesting is the fact that the software goes the extra mile by allowing you to have natural pauses and inflections like real human beings do. This is something that has rarely been done before on any other text to speech software in the market as of yet.

Now any video creator would know how important it is to have all of your production software integrate seamlessly with each other. Speechelo does just that by being flexible enough to be able to work with any video creation software.

Simply download the desired mp3 and then import it into your favorite video editor. Some of the video editing software compatible with Speechelo include iMovie, Camtasia, Premiere Pro, and many more. If you like you could even mix the voiceovers in Audacity and produce an interesting narration.

With more than 30 voices which is more than enough to meet all of your project needs, what you can also look into is creating videos in different languages, and then that will allow you to reach a greater global audience overall than you normally would be compared to only communicating your message in English.

And since the Speechelo editor will do all the work for you, you absolutely do not need to worry about proofreading and editing your script for grammar errors and punctuation mistakes as the A.I engine will check your text and will add all of the punctuation marks needed so that the speech may sound natural as possible.

The same goes for having unwelcome background noises, breathing sounds and longer pauses to your speech, leave it all up to the built-in text editor to do what it was created for.

Three different types of voice tones are not much to work with but are just okay for getting started, at least the 24+ languages make up for that by allowing us to reach a more globalized audience as not everybody understands English, and neither can everybody speak it.

How to Use Speechelo:

The software has been designed with the end-user in mind, making it user friendly and effective as possible at the same time if you are looking to produce voiceover for your video content in bulk or packaged and scheduled for uploading on Youtube or probably even your own website.

Step 1: Paste your script in the editor

Log into your software once you gained access. Assuming that your script is already prepared and ready to be published, head over to the box field where you are then going to copy and paste your finalized script into there.

Step 2: Choose your voiceover artist

Simply choose your preferred voice over artist by listening to a preview of how they sound like beforehand. This is like auditioning your own AI voiceover artists for a potential project.

As you might already know, not every voice is suitable for every script, depending on the overall feel and tone of the script, you would ideally prefer to have a matching voice tone with your script.

For example, if your script is for a corporate company that deals in selling insurance, you would want to choose a more mature laid back, calm female voice, and program her to sound emotional.

Choosing a happy male voice would be a weird choice and would reduce the impact that the script has. Besides female voices are more convincing to the buyer or potential viewer in general.

One of the strong points of this software is the multiple language feature. You can use this to your advantage by reproducing your script into various different languages and blast that out all over the net so that you can target people in other countries, who probably don't speak English with your videos telling them more about your products and services.

Don't underestimate this feature as it could potentially open up more business for you. Imagine having to pay 3 different translators from freelancer.com to translate your 2000 word script into 3 different languages.

There are a couple of things you could do to maximize this software to its fullest potential, and that is with video in different languages, partner up with buyers and freelancers in your niche after they have had their script made, and offer to provide the voiceover service in their language.

Step 3: Automate and download

Download the ready-made humanlike voiceover to your computer and send it straight away into the editing software of your choice.

You could even mix the voices together in on video projects for a different feel. Now, how easy was that? All we do from hereon now is rinse and repeat the process for as many clients as possible.

Conclusion:

If you don't really like the idea of speaking into a microphone and recording your own voice, for whatever reason that maybe, or even if you just feel uncomfortable speaking and maybe find yourself struggling with the pronunciation of certain words, then this software is definitely for you.

It will save you money from hiring voice talent and paying endless fees. It will give all your videos a professional touch while being able to simultaneously provide the same valuable service to others if you wish to do so.

Video creators who want to produce voiceover within seconds for their video content without having to book in a voice-over talent and engaging in those expenses will also get a bang for their buck with such software. The software is easy to use and navigation friendly for both beginners and experienced people.

The price is fairly good considering the fact that the voices sound real and you also get to cater for other languages plus you get access to this tool for life and on top of that, you will be making your money back tenfold your investment.

So think no more, and try Speechelo now!
