

Combat Veteran JaCue Now Trains To Be The Next Best Artist Out Of Pittsburgh

Los Angeles, California Nov 29, 2021 (IssueWire.com) - JaCue is an on the rise recording artist from Pittsburgh, PA. He is also a veteran who served in the U.S Army infantry with 2 tours of Afghanistan. He now puts his life experiences into his music. He began to embark on his music career in May of 2020. That year he released his first-ever debut project titled "Pothead with a puppy". Each passing day he continues to perfect his craft and better his brand. His most recent releases include two singles titled "Die For This" and "Letterman" which are available on all streaming platforms. Not only is he dedicated to making his music he also attends university while pursuing his dreams. When the pandemic hit it was actually a wonderful time for a ton of creators including JaCue.

This period helped many creators to take off since they could solely focus on what they could do in their homes. He had the opportunity to create his EP in that timeframe as well as singles each month for an entire year. Plus a sequel to his EP "Puffin with a puppy". During his musical career, he has been staying consistent and has even tapped in with other creators to collaborate such as King Los and Mark Battles which was a great experience for all of the artists. JaCue is continuing to elevate his craft while staying committed to being fully independent. This combat veteran still trains like he's in the middle of the desert, this grit and tenacity will get him far within any industry he pursues. Right now he is working on the trilogy to his EP and is working on a few singles such as "Baby Baby" set to drop December 3rd.

He is also planning his album for 2023. JaCue is keeping busy and will not disappoint any of his listeners. Make sure you check out his recent releases along with his music video “Odd Flex”.
