Banbury, Oxford Nov 18, 2021 (Issuewire.com) - Independent streetwear clothing brand TEN OF CLUBS has announced that it is collaborating with renowned music photographer Tony Woolliscroft on the creation of imagery and promo video content for the up-and-coming brand.

Announcing the collaboration, George Skevington, TEN OF CLUBS founder and Creative Director, said, "We're excited and proud to be working with Tony. We're a young company, growing fast, and every day is different. But the day Tony first contacted us is one we won't soon forget. We felt, and still feel, honoured that such a legendary photographer liked what we were doing and wanted to be involved."

Tony Woolliscroft's career in the music industry began in the late 1980s with photography for the English rock band New Model Army. More recently he has photographed artists including 1975, Gorillaz, Robbie Williams, Blur, Bush, and Jimmy Eat World. Woolliscroft's photographs have featured in numerous publications worldwide, including Raw, Kerrang, Rolling Stone, Q magazine, and The Sunday Times.

As well as spending 20 years touring with Dave Grohl's Foo Fighters as band photographer, Woolliscroft spent 16 years touring with the Red Hot Chili Peppers. His book, Me and My Friends: Red Hot Chili Peppers, published in 2008, showcased his iconic photography and shared fascinating stories from his time with the band.

Commenting on his latest project, Woolliscroft explained, "I'm always on the lookout for new brands to collaborate with, and TEN OF CLUBS caught my eye. It's really fun to swap ideas and to see how we can push the brand. It pushes me too as a photographer to come up with new ideas and apply my skills in new ways."

A British design collective of artists, illustrators, and graphic designers, TEN OF CLUBS launched its online store – www.tenofclubs.co.uk – in February 2021 during the UK's protracted lockdown. Favouring bold designs and quality fabrics, the brand's positive, inclusive, and irreverent attitude has resonated with image-conscious 20-somethings, as has its commitment to creativity and individual style.
