Leicester, England Dec 9, 2021 (Issuewire.com) - With the combination of alternative pop and indie in her music, the artist Caitlin Strommen has come up with her latest song 'Hung the Moon'. The song comes as a unique piece of music that holds a beautiful vocal of the artist. The artist has written most of his songs based on her own experience with disorders like anorexia, psychosis, and depression. So, through her songs, she tries to help people out. Mental illness is often ignored or unspoken. Being open about her struggles with being overweight, she has proven her courage, and now she encourages others through her songs to fight against it. The song fluently shares the message with a melodic progression of its music.

The lyrics of the song have justified the overall theme of the song. It has a rhythmic flow and uses the right words so that people can connect with it easily. Mixing indie and freestyle, she has given a beautiful look to the song. It will hit on the mind as a break from reverie. The music of the song keeps the congruency with lyrics intact. The background music of the song is cheerful and can be considered spiritual. It has the charismatic effect that can make you dive deep into the ocean of music. Her song can be dropped into the category of soulful music too as she feels the song while singing.

In other words, her song 'Hung the Moon' with the effectiveness of lyrics, cheerful music, and the lofty theme becomes a well-rounded figure that captures many genres in one touch. The other songs from her list must be mentioned- 'Circus', 'Sixteen', 'Beautiful', and 'Heartless'. All the songs have become popular among the listeners in a very short time.
