

Techonomy, CDX & Worth Add New Speakers to December 16th Conference; It Spotlights Innovation, Climate Action, Corporate

Leaders from NYU, Poppy Seed Health, SeekOut, Environmental Defense Fund, Cognizant and Columbia Business School, join roster of speakers for 2021 hybrid event

New York City, New York Dec 13, 2021 (Issuewire.com) - Techonomy, CDX & Worth, the three media arms of New York-based Clarim Media, today announced additional speakers for its in-person Health+Wealth of America conference. The conference, which is also taking place virtually, will be held in New York City on December 16 at Convene Midtown West, near Grand Central Station, from 8:30 am-6:00 pm. The event, which ranges far beyond healthcare, is headlined by prominent and diverse speakers across technology, NGOs, investing, academia, and yes, healthcare.

In addition to acclaimed speakers like Esther Dyson, Wellville; Financial Times columnist Rana Foroohar; CEO Alberto Casellas of Synchrony Health and Wellness; CEO Sarah Kirschbaum Levy of Betterment; and D. D. Guttenplan, editor at The Nation; the conference includes:

- Steve Hamm, author, formerly with BusinessWeek and IBM
- Kevin Pleiter, Cognizant
- Rita McGrath, Columbia Business School
- Alison Gross, Daintree Advisory
- Margot Brown, Environmental Defense Fund
- Mark Mahaney, Evercore ISI
- Anoop Gupta, SeekOut

- Andrew Lee, UBS

The Health+Wealth of America conference is a collaborative, multidisciplinary conversation about the country, the world, and the economy, and where it's all heading. It integrates technology, science, politics, activism, and innovation. The three media companies behind it each have a specific focus: Techonomy emphasizes technology's role in society, CDX concentrates on corporate digital transformation, and Worth centers on worthy entrepreneurship and responsible lifestyles.

"We are relieved and gratified to be hosting this live event in New York to spark discussion and generate ideas about tackling the challenges impacting our world," said David Kirkpatrick, Founder, Editor in Chief of Techonomy. "We'll examine how innovative solutions are created from social movements, diversity and inclusion, politics, business, and academia, so we can address serious issues such as the climate crisis, inadequate healthcare, inequality, and finding ways for companies to thrive while contributing to the solutions."
