Calgary, Alberta Dec 20, 2021 (Issuewire.com) - The idea of a free site is attractive. The internet is packed with businesses providing free Word Press website hosting, even though culture has been set for such kind of add-on extension in the portfolio to market leaders across the world.

Wondering what the trap is, probably? Why doesn't everybody use a free Word Press site? In this article, we will share reasons for "free website" is a bad idea.

Reasons why a "free website" is a bad idea.

Are you getting a free website?

For most newcomers, the cost is low and is understandable. The website is opened by the majority. You can normally see the word "free website" on Google and several organizations that provide free hosting. The idea of making your platform free of charge without paying is tricky. Before you verify the facts. If you have registered for these so-called "online website resources," you will gradually learn the drawbacks and many are not at all free.

If you or your buddy wants to get a free website, quit now and read these reasons for "free website" is a bad idea.

- Slow Websites — Limited Bandwidth — Low Disk Storage

Free website hosting providers put hundreds of websites on the same server. This makes website loading incredibly low, creating a bad user experience which results in poor Google Ranking.

Bandwidth is the speed of data transferred from server to user browser. It costs money to transfer data in nick of time and free websites come with very limited bandwidth.

Free website hosting companies offers limited free storage to store your data. When you reach that limit, you are asked to pay for the additional storage.

2. Unprofessional web address and email id, Irrelevant adv. on your website, and no support.

The website is not professionally designed to have an URL like my small business. Free Web site.com. It is hard to take the website seriously for visitors and prospective clients since there is no suitable domain name for you.

You have to pay a premium fee for the personalized domain of free site hosting firms — for a domain that usually costs $10 from $19 — $25.

With your own domain name, you can't build e-mail accounts. This means that you have to use your non-professional email or Gmail address. The programs of these free websites are funded by publicity.

You make content and create your page, but pay for advertising. These advertisements frequently interrupt, intrude, and look hideous which might influence your company.

The hardest thing to do is to pay several times for your knowledgeable rivals to advertise on your website. Indirectly, you may not be aware of it and sabotage your company. These free websites do not provide users with any support. You will need to configure your own website.

3. Trial Service is Not Really Free and Hidden charges for free website and Limited file upload features

Many of the resources provided on the free website are also restricted. You have to pay for it after a while. This pricing generally exceeds WordPress's standard hosting facilities in most cases. If you have attached a credit card during your registration, you will be charged unnoticed.

These free website businesses must also make profits, much as every other company. Any of these users bill for external facilities such as image hosting, email addresses, FTP registration, conversion of websites, etc.

Often these accusations are abominably strong. You may use an FTP client or media uploader on WordPress to upload unrestricted files to your website with paid hosting companies. Only a web-based interface is available from free website firms to import a file at a time.
