Puncture Repair: Punctured and flat tyres are common reasons for accidents and sudden breakdowns in the UK. Also, getting stuck away from the repair centre with a punctured tyre can be troublesome. A punctured tyre is most typically the result of rubble or sharp objects such as screws or pointed nails stuck inside the tyre grooves. Other reasons are damaged valves, over or underinflating a tyre, or driving recklessly on uneven terrains. KK's in-house team will thoroughly examine all your tyres and then notify you about the best viable solution and carry them out only after your approval.

Wheel Balancing: Imbalance in the car wheels is a recurring issue that cars owners should avoid at all costs. The continuous tension faced by tyres on the road when driving on bumpy roads and uneven patches is the primary cause of imbalance in the wheels. The indications of an imbalance wheel include uneven wear or vibrations when driving, and should be inspected quickly to avoid further internal damage. Different reasons such as worn-out components, not opting for regular checks, and driving habits can cause a wheel imbalance and damage the tyres.

Tyre Pressure Check: Experts at KK Tyre perform tyre pressure checks that aids in maintaining and improving the overall performance of your car. Air pressure plays a major role in determining how long your tyres will last and their on-road performance. KK's crew will check the air inside your tyres and ensure it is according to the set standards. A tyre with the right air pressure and low rolling resistance can help save up to 10% in fuel expenses.
