Milan, Jan 20, 2022 (Issuewire.com) - The fusion Jazz band Ujig has compelled their listeners with their track 'Pohjoinen'. This extremely well-arranged number is one of the eight songs of their album 'Ujigami' featuring the Bow Tie Orchestra from Moscow. This piece was composed by Cesare Pizzetti, Edoardo Maggioni, Konstantin Krautler Horvarth, and Marco Leo. The uplifting nature of this song is undeniably fresh. The band was formed in 2014 when the band members were attending workshops at Berklee College of Music. The sole intention was to form an international group and infuse several backgrounds and experiences in their projects. They wanted to take the fusion part a step further melting the Jazz genre to rock and making original music that will speak the language of the world.

In December 2014 they started recording their first album and since then they have released three albums. And will continue to make more music along with their chosen path of progressive fusion form of musical art. Their latest album 'Ujigami' is saturated with well-composed and extremely well-performed music. Apart from this song they have also collaborated with Fabrizio Bosso in another song named, 'Tano'. They have written and composed the orchestra part of 'Pohjoinen' as well. They also wanted to keep the European touch to their songs and they have exceeded ecstatically in each of their musical numbers. The band has co-produced songs along with Luminol Records. Other songs on this album are, 'Ehiku', 'Mea e Pau', 'Odota', 'Pokemon Shock', 'Yugen', 'Gnawa'.

All have their unique flavor. The progressive Jazz band Ujig has performed with their passionate form of art that levitates the audience along with it. They are working on new pieces, and evidently, those songs are going to be a treat to witness, and so will be their live performances. The band offers a wide range of music that will not only inspire you to fall in love with music all over again but also be educated more about musical cultures. The opening piece of this particular song will evoke the nostalgia of Bach while the later Jazz infused part will offer a refreshing vibe.
