In her professional experience, she held a resident teaching position and worked in a South Boston private dental practice to expand her endodontic skills. During this time, she became highly proficient in diagnosing and treating multiple disease states of the dental pulp and other oral pathology conditions. She then went on to serve as an endodontic associate in private practice in Wyomissing and Pottstown for 16 years, before realizing her dream and opening her own solo practice in 2020.
