OldPostcards.com Has the Largest Online Selection of Vintage Post Cards

Colorado Springs, Colorado Feb 8, 2022 (Issuewire.com) - What started as a hobby in the late 1970s turned into a full online business in the late 1990s. Since 1998, Old Postcards has been the premier site for people to get their hands on exclusive antique postcards. Whether buyers enjoy showcase cards or maybe postcards of their hometown or places they visited, Oldpostcards.com's wide selection keeps customers intrigued.

Howard and Marilyn started racking up postcards from different cities in the United States and Europe. They turned their hobby into a business after acquiring a definitive collection of postcards. Both of them put in the groundwork to organize, catalog, price, and sleeve the postcards for trade shows and antique shows on the weekend.

Due to the transition from brick-and-mortar to online, their son Alan turned the family business into a digital realm. There are four stores wrapped into one site to help cater to all collecting interest. Whether one is interested in Topical Postcards or Post Cards from their home state or maybe World Countries that they might have visited, every category imaginable is covered.

Other customers may enjoy Victorian advertising Trade Cards that highlight the turn of the 20th century.

The beauty of these trade cards adds a unique vibe to the global appeal of a postcard collection.

Grading

OldPostcards.com has been in the business for over 20 years and has a solid grading system. They understand that quality is imperative when preserving cards from a particular pastime. The more rare the card is and the better the condition, the higher the value.

However, it takes a valiant effort to keep these cards in mint condition. The system helps the pricing range from mint to poor condition. Also, customers can email them about imperfections on the card that may have been accidentally overlooked that may affect the cost.

The staff knows the value of a returning customer and will help create a fair solution to any issues.

Selection

With over 2 Million Postcards in stock, OldPostcards.com has a variety of postcards to suit the tastes of its customers. Customers can search the US postcards site to get vintage postcards from all 50 states. If someone wants a postcard from an overseas country, the world postcards site is another solid one to scroll.

While postcards are the bread and butter of their brand, they also have some artwork for sale. If any customers want to boost their collection of rare, vintage, and modern postcards, this is an excellent site to start building a base.
