

Tomás Elías González Benítez: “The LA Rams play the Super Bowl final in their stadium and that means a small advantage”

Millions of spectators, from all over the world, and a large billing place the Super Bowl as the most important sporting event of the year

Barquisimeto, Lara Feb 7, 2022 (IssueWire.com) - The new article, written by the Venezuelan journalist Tomás Elías González Benítez, analyzes the preview of the 2022 Super Bowl, one week after it is played.

Tens of millions of viewers, connected around the world, and dizzying turnover make the Super Bowl the most watched sporting event of the year.

Which teams will play the 2022 Super Bowl?

The winner of the National Football Conference, Matthew Stafford's Los Angeles Rams, will face the best team in the American Football Conference, Joe Burrow's Cincinnati Bengals.

Where will the 2022 Super Bowl be played?

Single game, at SoFi Stadium in Inglewood in Los Angeles, California, as well as the home of the LA Rams, despite being a neutral field.

“Playing in their stadium is a small advantage for the LA Rams”, Tomás Elías González Benítez thinks.

The Rams' road to the Super Bowl

Playing the NFL Finals in front of their home crowd has been the goal of the LA Rams since SoFi Stadium was billed as the home of Super Bowl 56.

However, between saying and doing there was an exciting journey, but not always a simple one.

After a regular season that finished fourth in the National Football Conference behind the Green Bay Packers, Tampa Bay Buccaneers, and Dallas Cowboys, the Los Angeles team found the best football of the season in single-elimination games.

- LA Rams - Arizona Cardinals 34-11
- Tampa Bay Buccaneers-LA Rams 27-30
- LA Rams-San Francisco 49ers 20-17

“The feat was undoubtedly the home of the Tampa Bay Buccaneers in a game dominated half the time, leading them to 27-3, but seeing them recover until 27-27 with forty seconds to play”, explains Tomás Elías González Benítez.

Enough to allow quarterback Stafford to find the winning attacking action 30-27 in what was actually Tom Brady's last game.

The Cincinnati Bengals' road to the Super Bowl

Las Vegas Raiders, Tennessee Titans, and Kansas City Chiefs. These are the victims of the Cincinnati Bengals in the 2021/22 NFL playoffs.

“After beating the Raiders in the wild card round, the Bengals shocked everyone by winning the American Football Conference title and thus a seat in the Super Bowl”, says Tomás Elías González Benítez.

After the 19-16 loss at home to the top-seeded Tennessee Titans, the feat led by quarterback Joe Burrow came to the home of Patrick Mahomes' Kansas City Chiefs with an incredible comeback certified in overtime by 27-24 finals.

Who will win the 2022 Super Bowl, according to Tomás Elías González Benítez?

In any case, it will be a surprise since both the Los Angeles Rams and the Cincinnati Bengals were not among the most credited teams at the beginning of the season.

“After a good regular season, but closed for both teams in fourth place in their respective Conference, both the LA Rams and the Cincinnati Bengals have increased the quality of the game in the most important moment of the season, the playoffs;

The field factor will be decisive”, concludes Tomás Elías González Benítez.
