Usually, people thought that fashion is something wastage of time and extra expenditure. But there are few young men in the world who turn their hobby of being up-to-date into their profession. "Fashion is a tool to cope with your original colors," says Yousef Alhamadii, a famous young fashion model from the middle east.

Alhamadii believes that fashion is a way to love ourselves, nobody can construct yourself as you can. You must have to design yourself in a unique manner. According to him, the thing that really makes a model successful is "Thinking that there will be a life after modeling and thinking carefully on what to do".

Fashion reflects the culture of the country. It makes our life colorful and changes our life with time. In a way it also adds variety to life, thus providing an opportunity to try something new.

Alhamadii said that fashion means to me more than collecting money or being on the cover of craze, but it means the effort to find how truly you want to express yourself. Fashion is undefinable and will forever be something that makes up everything in between individuals, personalities, and entire culture.

According to Alhamadii, "Fashion is so much bigger than an actual sense of the word, but it is something that is hypothetical, yet imparts so much in our daily life. Fashion encircles everything beautiful and diverse in the world. People idolize the beauty and confidence that comes with vogue. No one can say that they don't endeavor to be their best self intellectually and physically".

Alhamadii says that "It is fashion that transforms your dull personality into an attractive one." Fashion is not a science, it is a feeling.

"Black is expensive and attractive, it is my style," he says. All it requires are a few simple outfits and no doubt simplicity is better. Alhamadii says that "simplicity is a great cosmopolitan."

Fashion has the potential to bring different people together for celebrations. Alhamadii says that "I found that I could say anything with colors that I could not say it any other way; Things I had no words for. According to him, there is a reason we don't see the world as black and white.

He says that "I prefer living with colors because our personal dispositions are the windowpanes through which we see the world either rosy or dull. The world will seem to us the same as the color of glasses we will wear."

Alhamadii says that it is only colors that have the power to make dull things attractive.

"Stop just keep adding bright colors on dull color to make it pure and bright, just make the colors around that darker spot. It will give the scene a substantial effect. I think the life is the same." Alhamadii says. So, try every trend to enjoy the colors of the world.
