

Black Engineer Creates the First Social Media Platform for Self-Published Authors and Aspiring Writers

Los Angeles, California Mar 14, 2022 (Issuewire.com) - Are you a self-published author looking for resources? Wouldn't it be nice to connect with other authors and share resources? WeWriteToo is the first and only social media platform named for self-published authors, aspiring writers, and book illustrators where they can network, promote, and share resources amongst each other. WeWriteToo is projected to become the Facebook of the self-publishing community!

The WeWriteToo platform is brought you by Warn Wilson Jr. Wilson is the author of Brown Money, an engineer, and app creator from Jackson, Mississippi. Wilson graduated from Mississippi State University with a BS in Electrical Engineering.

Wilson says that as a self-published author, he knows the struggle of finding resources and connecting with fellow writers. WeWriteToo aims to help every aspiring writer or creative with getting the help they need.

On the WeWriteToo platform, users will be able to:

- connect with fellow authors, writers, illustrators, and creatives
- post upcoming/current books, writings, and illustrative works
- promote book launches and/or other events
- sell products or services
- create groups with other authors
- direct message other users
- post freelance services or jobs

This platform will be groundbreaking for the self-publishing and writing community! The beta version of the platform is available now at wewritetoo.com and will be coming soon to the App Store and Google Play Store!

Wilson also expressed that he is interested in collaborative or partnership opportunities and can be reached via email at info@wewritetoo.com.
