Why should you buy from Coleman's Army and Military Surplus Store?

Even if you are not an outdoors person, tactical or military enthusiast, or survivalist you should still be looking for the best quality for the money when purchasing military surplus items for you and your family. Well, there is no reason to look further; the military surplus is your answer. It does not matter if you are seeking a rugged, comfortable backpack sturdy enough to live out of, or camping/survival equipment that is going to keep you and your family safe from the inclement weather, or other hazards in a sometimes uncertain world. We cannot think of a better option than military surplus clothing, tents, and gear. Here are three factors concerning military surplus that you should consider before buying anything else.

- Economical. Why would you buy overly overpriced equipment from a retailer whose bottom line is the almighty dollar when you can buy well-researched, and battle-tested equipment at a lowered price? Buying surplus is not only good for you, but also for the environment too as it provides a means of repurposing equipment that would be discarded otherwise. Do you and the planet a favor, we like to call it “going green” the next time you are in the market for something, see if Colemans have what you need first.
- Manufactured To Military Specifications. Think about it, the military requires stringent government regulations to be followed regarding any equipment that it has manufactured. This is because the military requires uniformity in all its items, and it demands that the best materials be used for manufacture. Remember these items were made to this standard. That means that this quality of the material is passed on to you, the civilian consumer.
- Superior quality. Since the military uses only the best materials there are many ways to upcycle military items as well. Repurposed material from army surplus tents can be made into clothing, waterproofing, or vehicle covers. These materials are not only eco-friendly but lifesaving. Surplus gas masks can not only protect your family from gas attacks, but they could also mean the difference between dying from smoke inhalation and escaping to safety in the event of a house fire.

We have rave reviews from our customers as a testament to our dedication to putting forth our best service.
