CODE POET

Los Angeles, California Mar 10, 2022 (IssueWire.com) - Veteran computer programmer Code Poet is on a mission to spread the greatness of the rich philosophy of India, the Sanatana Dharma in a more practical and comprehensible way in his newly written book, 'The Programmer's Way'. In the 12-chapter book, he has penned down his experiential and analytical observations on Sanatana Dharma in a way that is a treat for the technical minds across the world. He talks about the existence of the world and every living thing in the book. He answers the fundamental question of all about the structure of all creations explained through his understandings of the Sanatana Dharma.

The book opens with him explaining Lord Krishna's answer to Arjuna about the structure of the universe at the beginning of the war in Mahabharata. He explains how the universe is formed with fractal structures, each part of which is the same as the whole. He says that the formation can be seen everywhere, from simple crystal growth to the formation of a galaxy. He explains the matter with the Fractal Tree of Consciousness in which every branch, sub-branch, and twig is similar to the entire tree itself.

He says that everything originated from the Supreme Consciousness and it is the root node of the tree. The root node replicated itself into smaller entities which are the things our world is made of. As per the book, 'The Programmer's Way', each branch of the Tree of Consciousness is able to experience events and think freely on its own. Code Poet says the physical world is a very common simulation where the Tree of Consciousness is engaged in. The book further reveals a lot of things that can be understood by a wise and open mind. The book can be found on Amazon. Follow him on Instagram and LinkedIn for more details.
