Houston, Texas Mar 22, 2022 (IssueWire.com) - Motorcycle accidents injure thousands of people each year, and statistics indicate that you are much more likely to be severely injured in a motorcycle crash than a crash involving another type of vehicle.

The Houston Motorcycle accident lawyers at Rose Sanders Law Firm are here to help injured motorcyclists.

In many cases, victims are entitled to compensation for their losses, but issues like greedy insurance companies and bias against bikers make it hard for them to recover. For this reason, it's highly advisable for motorcycle accident victims to retain a Houston Motorcycle Accident Law Firm to represent them.

Bias against Bikers?

When you say "motorcyclist," many people immediately think about a risk-taking young male who likely had something to do with any accident in which he or she was involved. This stereotype, which has been reinforced through decades of portrayals in movies and television, often means that bikers are not treated fairly by insurance companies and courts. Fortunately, an experienced motorcycle accident lawyer can ensure that you obtain any compensation to which you are entitled.

Insurance Companies Do Not Want to Pay Up

If there is one thing you should be clear about after an accident caused by someone else, it's that insurance companies are in the business of saving money whenever they can. That means that they will gladly deny your claim if they can find any way to do so. If they can't deny it, they will do everything they can to minimize your settlement.

Some of the tactics that insurance companies may use to try and settle your case for less than it is worth include:

- Misrepresenting your rights
- Starting with an unreasonably low initial offer
- Telling you that you are not entitled to damages for pain and suffering
- Pressuring you to provide a recorded statement about your accident
- Making unreasonably broad medical record requests

Fortunately, a Houston motorcycle accident lawyer familiar with handling insurance companies can protect your rights.
