

Early Learning Resource Center in Danville, PA

In 1974, Danville Child Development Center (DCDC) was born as a non-profit Early Learning Resource Center in Danville, PA.

Pennsylvania , United States Mar 14, 2022 (Issuewire.com) - In 1974, Danville Child Development Center (DCDC) was born as a non-profit Early Learning Resource Center in Danville, PA. DCDC traces its roots back to a small church basement with six children, and co-founders Dr. Kathleen Mulligan and Nancy Vella. Since then, DCDC has become a leading accredited childcare provider and Early Learning Resource Center in the Central Susquehanna Valley serving upwards of 300 children a year.

DCDC persistently prioritizes the needs of their students and families with a curriculum focusing on providing more than just childcare to their community. As Montour County's first and oldest early learning program, the primary goal to cultivate the highest quality education remains the same after nearly 50 years in business.

By offering various types of age-driven programs, Danville Child Development Center provides a consistent, warm, nurturing, and stimulating environment for your youngest learners from infancy up until their thirteenth birthday with School-Age Care for Kids! DCDC is an Early Learning Resource Center in Danville, PA committed to supporting the needs of local families, which is why we even offer transportation to and from school during the school year AND offer year-round programs during summer vacation.

So, what are you waiting for? DCDC is the leading Early Learning Resource Center in Danville, PA, and sets a strong foundation for your child's future. Call 570.275.4047 to enroll your child today!

Media Contact

Danville Child Development Center

info@danvillecdc.org

Source : Danville Child Development Center

See on IssueWire