

Let your emotions reflect through the latest mood rings by Aurora Promise

Other Provinces, Anguilla Mar 26, 2022 (Issuewire.com) - Embrace the feeling of wearing a limited edition ring with the latest mood rings by Aurora Promise. This leading organization is making a revolution in the market by offering rings that change color according to the wearer's mood. These rings are highly attractive and can be part of individual expression that is often not expressed. Consisting of artisanal excellence and a scientific approach, these rings are completely authentic and serve the purpose of determining mood just like it claims. The company offers a massive collection of different kinds of rings like Unisex rings, mini rings, adjustable rings, and the list goes on.

Such a unique piece of accessories can satisfy every customer around the world regardless of their age and gender. This wearable jewelry has been around the industry for decades and now the mood ring is reaching newer heights with its increasing global demand. The rings work like indicators of mental and physical health and well-being. As result, the health condition and inner emotions of the wearer can reflect through a mood ring on the index finger. The material used to craft the ring can quickly determine the temperature and perspiration of the wearer's body and change its color accordingly. Based on the color, it gets easier to determine how the other person is feeling right now.

Aurora Promise's mood rings are also called 'emotional gems' since they determine the wearer's emotions precisely and more accurately. With each emotion occurred there is a slight change in temperature, perspiration, and pulse rate of a human body. The mind rings are capable of determining these small changes and can show the exact mood of the wearer. The rings contain a thermophilic liquid crystal that changes pigment with the rise and fall in temperature. While there are many controversies regarding the invention of the mood rings; it is considered that the invention took place back in the '70s.

Rejuvenating the classic essence along with a pinch of scientific knowledge, technological expertise, and magic; these mood rings are truly a gem in the modern era. The gems are well supported by 925 sterling silver to increase their durability. It is more of a one-time purchase that is going to stay for the rest of your life. Each of the rings is crafted with utmost professionalism and care to make sure each customer is satisfied with their purchase. However, the thermophilic chemical used in the ring is quite hydrophobic and requires avoiding contact with water, rain, and snow.

Aurora Promise is keeping its promise to bring some of the most exquisite jewelry items in the industry by incorporating the latest technology and scientific practices. The mood rings provided by this company is are authentic and can show an array of colors based on the wearer's mood. There is a color meter to determine mood through colors ranging from black to multiple colors of the rainbow. Keeping items at a nominal pricing system, the organization is looking forward to empowering all.

Visit www.aurorapromise.com/ to know more.

aurorapromise

support@aurorapromise.com

Source : aurorapromise

See on IssueWire