

Lifewit launched its Drawer Organizers that support Americans to address “Cleaning Black Hole”

Dover, Delaware Mar 23, 2022 (Issuewire.com) - To help people create a clean and organized life, Lifewit has introduced 2 drawer storage sets to provide solutions for getting rid of clutter drawers.

According to the report from yahoo, junk drawers have become full-blown "cleaning black holes" for most Americans. As most people struggle to keep small things like makeup organized, especially things they use every day. In a survey of 2,000 people living in the United States, 88% of respondents admitted to having at least one "junk drawer" full of knick-knacks.

Clutter drawers only hamper one's ability to make life better and there are at least 3 reasons to eliminate them forever.

1. Cluttered drawers cause laziness: They allow one to just throw stuff in instead of taking time to take care of it.
2. Cluttered drawers make it easy to ignore: People often naturally put something away in a drawer and then leave them behind.
3. Cluttered drawers can make people nervous: A 2010 study showed that people who feel they live in a chaotic environment have elevated levels of cortisol in their brains, indicating that they are under high stress.

Just as Amanda Warfield said, "the junk drawer is where all of your good intentions about getting organized go to die."

Content about drawer storage, such as blogs and videos, floods the Internet. Ironically, instead of relieving people's stress, this has led them to a new dilemma of "Information overload". With this in mind, Lifewit has identified some key products to support people in keeping things arranged.
