

LLUNA is Turning the Great Resignation into the Great Personalization with a Groundbreaking New Tool for Employees.

A free and powerful technology for today's employees to define their work/life preferences.

Philadelphia, Pennsylvania Mar 10, 2022 (IssueWire.com) - The team behind LLUNA's innovative Work Designer software, has created a new, free product offering called MyLLUNA, designed to help employees identify their work/life priorities and share them with managers, colleagues, or recruiters. MyLLUNA gives a voice to employees in an approachable and professional way, further progressing the dialogue about employee experience in the future of work.

"As the future of work evolves, a personalized and transparent approach to employment is taking hold. Employees must be empowered to share their work/life preferences specific to schedule, work location, work style, and professional development – doing so will help managers lead better and companies perform better," said Jess Podgajny, Co-founder and CEO of LLUNA. "This isn't just about the whims of employees, this is about cultivating inclusive company cultures that work for everyone regardless of age, gender, race, role, and tenure. The costs are too great for all parties to continue with old ways. With voluntary turnover costing US businesses over $1 trillion dollars a year, it's time that leaders shift to a more human-centered employment model. MyLLUNA is a simple way for all employees to let companies know what they need to be their best."

MyLLUNA offers the ability to:

- Help people reflect on their ideal work/life arrangement.
- Share personalized preferences with managers, peers, and prospective employers.
- Establish common ground for mutually beneficial dialogue about work/life between employers and employees.

Employees and job seekers can personalize their work/life preferences at my.hellolluna.com
