

Luxury Skyscraper in Texas was Creative Space that Fueled Award-Winning Producer Jonathan Hay

Dallas, Texas Mar 14, 2022 (Issuewire.com) - The Victor, a luxurious residential skyscraper community located in the thriving Victory Park neighborhood of Dallas, Texas served as a creative outlet for critically acclaimed record producer Jonathan Hay's latest musical endeavor titled Wish You Were Jazz. According to Forbes, Jonathan Hay released five Billboard charting albums during an 18-month period, hitting more than 30 different Billboard charts topping numerous categories.

The Victor provides an incredible amount of high-rise luxury apartments and penthouses to residents around the world. The designers built The Victor to mirror an art gallery with lavish features that became the creative space worthy of a #1 Billboard Jazz charting producer. Wish You Were Jazz was recorded with the best views that Dallas has to offer as seen through enormous floor-to-ceiling windows. Being in the inspiring high-rise with concrete floors makes it hard for noise to travel throughout, giving Hay naturally phenomenal sounding acoustics.

Wish You Were Jazz is the official follow-up to Follow the Leader (Reimagined As Jazz); Hay's collaborative album with the legendary Eric B. & Rakim that hit #1 on the Billboard Jazz charts. Wish You Were Jazz reimagines songs in the genre of "nu-jazz" from the likes of Drake, Adele, Israel Kamakawiwo'ole, Rihanna, Nirvana, Lil Peep, Michael Jackson, Ariana Grande, Run-D.M.C., and more.

Hay's reimagined work has been endorsed by publications such as NME, Yahoo Finance, EDM.com, Rolling Stone, Variety, Spin Magazine, The Advocate, GRAMMY.com, and many more. Wish You Were Jazz collaborators include Diana Pagan, Matt Berman, 41x, Dani Darko, Jowil Alexander, Atlas Jenkins, and more.
